Derivation of "Day's Eye"

In October, 1967, all students of Sampson Technical Institute were challenged to enter a Sampson Tech. Yearbook Title Contest. The person who contributed the most appropriate title was rewarded a free copy of the yearbook.

From the numerous entries of the students, the judges, after serious consideration, made their selection: "Day's Eye". "Day's Eye" was submitted by Billy Peterson, Business Manager of the first edition of the yearbook. After discovering that "Sampson" is derived from the Hebrew word meaning "Sunlike", he concluded that the Sun is the "Day's Eye".

Everyone finds something interesting, and amusing on the bulletin board, right, Mr. Mayo?

Seriously girls, it's not all that bad.

"Things go better with Coke".

Rogers and Hammerstein: "At half past six . . . "

"The Sophomores are plotting another scheme".

Was Anthony's night really that interesting, Casper?

He'll make it to the moon one day with his bucket to pick moonbeams.

Eating and gossiping are everyone's favorite pastime.

This is one way to lessen the load on your feet.

Back to the grindstone after Christmas holidays.

She'll be a Cougar someday.

"Dale, you don't mean that, do you?" Our own little mascot.

Sampson Tech's Used-Car Lot

Even MAVERICK couldn't beat this hand.

Here is your varifiable evidence, Mr. Mayo.

Everyone contributes to the suggestion box.

What is the definition for "schizophrenic?"

What's under the Christmas tree for you, Wayne?

Believe it or not, Santa Claus came this year.

"Play that rock and roll music."

We'll give you one that sings next year, Mr. Mayo.

"This is one time the lady opens the door for the gentleman."

Accepting the challenge—continuing with excellence—
success—
our goals—

The annual staff of the 1969 Day's Eye spent many long and trying hours to create this edition of the yearbook. Despite some irritable delays and a recurring sense of despair as time ran short, the quality of the finished product caused all hardship encountered to fade quickly from memory.

The Day's Eye staff was able to turn out a publication of which all the students could be justly proud only through the dedication and cooperation of each member.

The annual staff is proud to present the '69 Day's Eye to you.

ACADEMICS

Business education demands constant study, research and dedicated teaching.

"Is that a Sociology book under your Credit book, Dwight?"

Thank goodness, someone has some money.

The varied course offerings of the Business Administration curriculum provide the student with the knowledge and understanding to meet headlong the varied demands and challenges of an ever-changing world of business. In addition to the need of teaching the student how to earn, there is a concentrated attempt to teach him how to live a meaningful life in a business-oriented environment. Thus, there is justification for courses in accounting and marketing, as well as sociology and psychology.

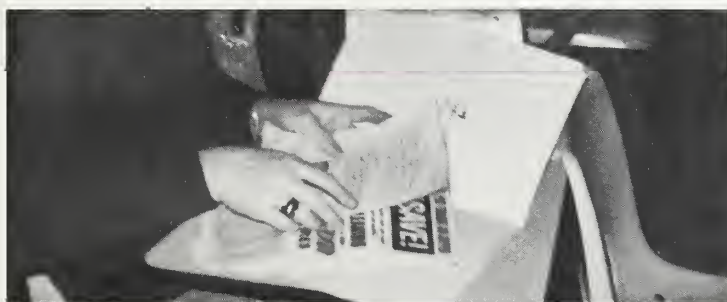

Mr. Mayo and one of his attentive classes.

Today business administration is one of the more exciting of all areas of study. All of us have an interest in improving the world in which we live. Thus, we study various subjects in hope that through better understanding we can help to bring about improvement. The study of business administration is no exception. A student in this program can expect to be prepared to enter such areas as finance, personnel administration, accounting, insurance and marketing.

Wonder what is on everyone's mind?

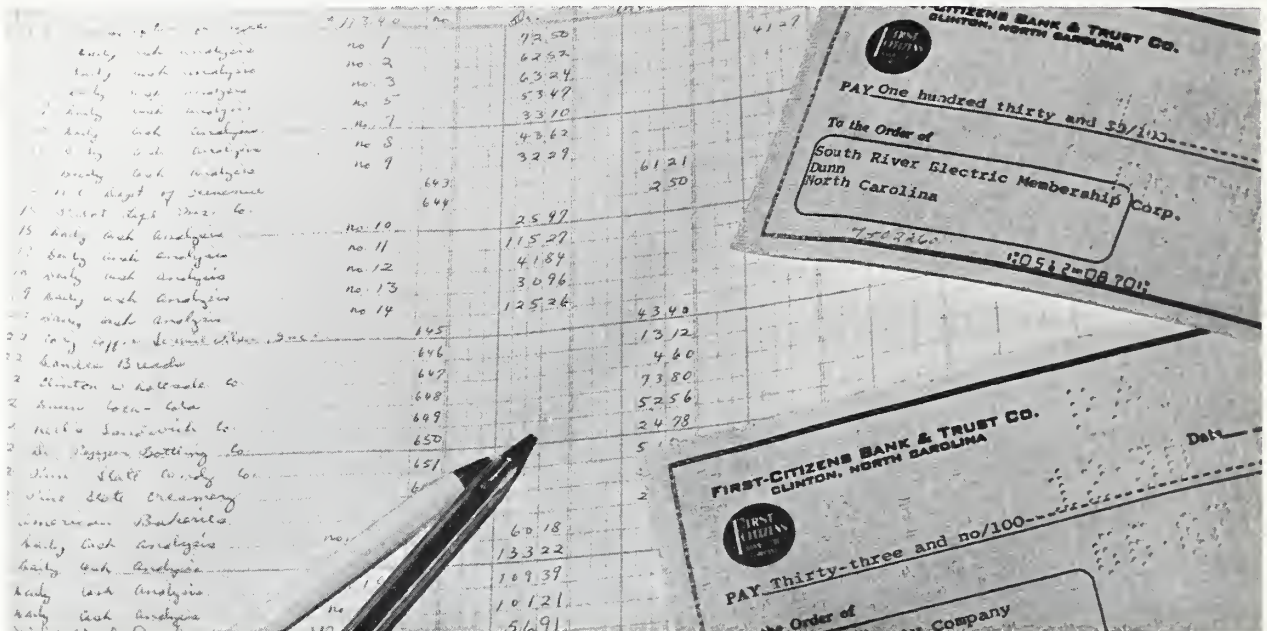

Advertisements present a pictorial education for the students.

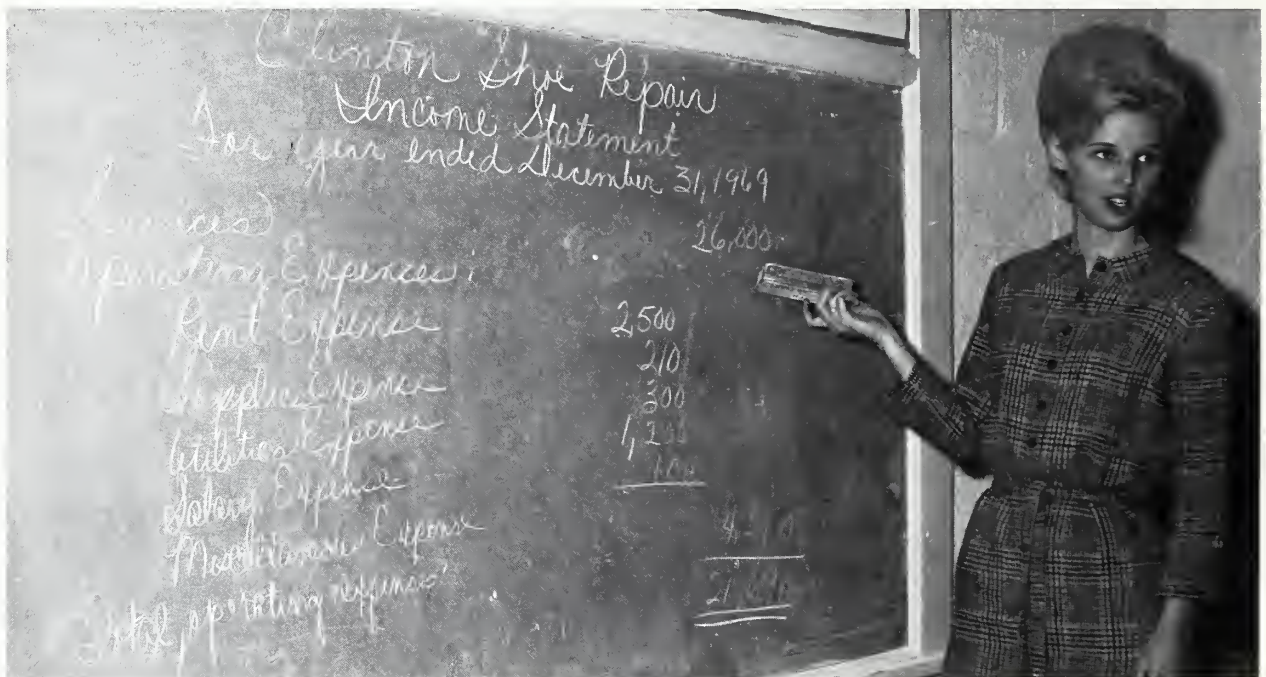

"Dwight, you should have done your home-work before class."

Debit, credit, profit and loss, long tedious hours—but we're in balance.

The long lines of tiny numerals begin to make sense and the accounting student realizes that balance sheets and income statements are vital records for the business organization. The accountant has the responsibility of keeping track of the essential dollars-and-cents information affecting the organization, of interpreting the information in terms of success or failure, and of helping to plan the course of future action.

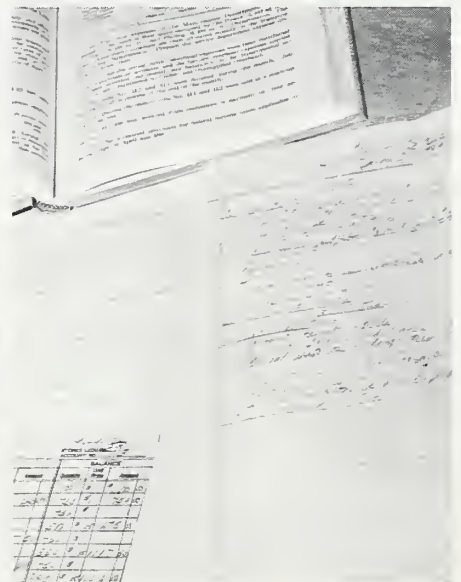

"Any questions?"

Left: "Now which side did she say was the debit?"

Above: Students need some guidance in the use of machines.

Secretarial skills are demanding but rewarding

The graduate of the Executive Secretary Curriculum should have a knowledge of business terminology, skill in dictation and accurate transcription of business letters and reports. The secretary, in addition to taking dictation and transcribing, is given more responsibility in connection with meeting office callers, screening telephone calls, and being an assistant to an executive. She may enter a secretarial position in a variety of offices in businesses such as insurance companies, banks, marketing institutions, and financial firms.

"Looking for your grades, Pam?"

Learning to use the Dictaphone is an important job of the secretary's education.

Efficient LPN training is a valuable community asset

This dedicated group, aspiring to the profession of the "angels of mercy", embrace a program of intensive classroom study and practical hospital experience which demands the complete mental and physical devotion of each trainee.

Thorough training in anatomy, drugs, diseases, psychology, nursing techniques and dietary requirements is emphasized in this LPN program.

Oscar went on a "crash" diet.

"Those girls will really tear you up!"

Even the nurses have to learn to house-keep!

"It's not that bad, Mrs. Peacock."

"Dishwashing liquid here?"

"This is no time to have a Cosmetology enemy."

Color, curl, set and comb, skillful hands work beauty magic.

Mr. Odom checks the finished hair style.

The essential elements for beautiful hair.

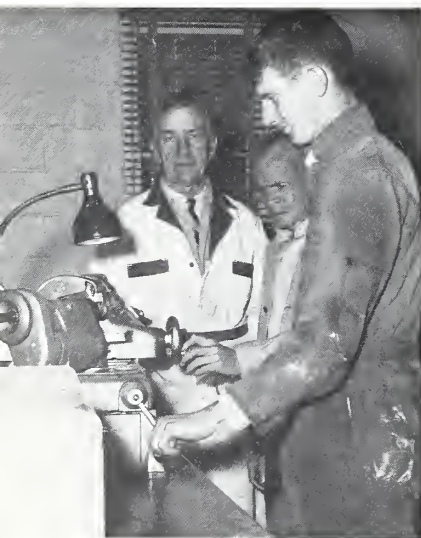

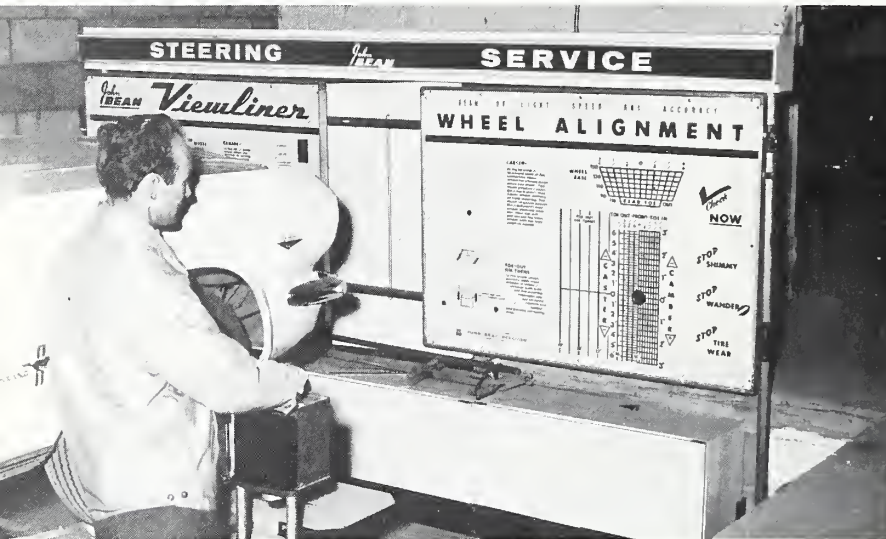

A new dimension was added to STI this year in the form of a very successful Cosmetology department. All phases of beauty culture are included in the course, and both technical knowledge and practical experience are achieved in a modern beauty salon atmosphere.

Your car is in good hands with Sampson tech. trained automotive engineers

The Automotive Engineering curriculum provides training in developing the basic knowledge and skills needed to inspect, diagnose, repair, and adjust automotive vehicles. Manual skills are developed in practical shop work. Thorough understanding of the operating principles involved in the modern automobile comes in class assignments, discussion, and shop practice. With the increasing complexity of automotive equipment it is certain that there will be an increasingly great demand for members of this profession in the future.

"Looking for the spare tire, Casper?"

"I didn't know that washing windows was included in Auto Mechanics."

A welder must know exactly what he is doing in order to prevent a hazardous accident.

Welding opportunities are great for those who qualify

In the manufacturing, construction, and service industries, the forming and joining of metals by welding is fast gaining in importance. There is a need in modern industry for craftsmen with varying degrees of technical training and skill, and for welding engineer who are able to design weldments, and write specifications. This program was developed to fill the tremendous need for welders in North Carolina. Future vacancies are expected to be great.

The curriculum is designed to give students sound understanding of the principles, methods, and skills essential for successful employment in the welding field and metals industry. The field of welding offers a person prestige, security, and a future of continuous employment with steady advancement. It offers employment in practically any industry: shipbuilding, automotive, aircraft, guided missiles, railroads, construction, pipe fitting, production shop, job shop, and many others. The future of welding is bright, indeed.

MDTA—the hope of tomorrow for today's unemployed

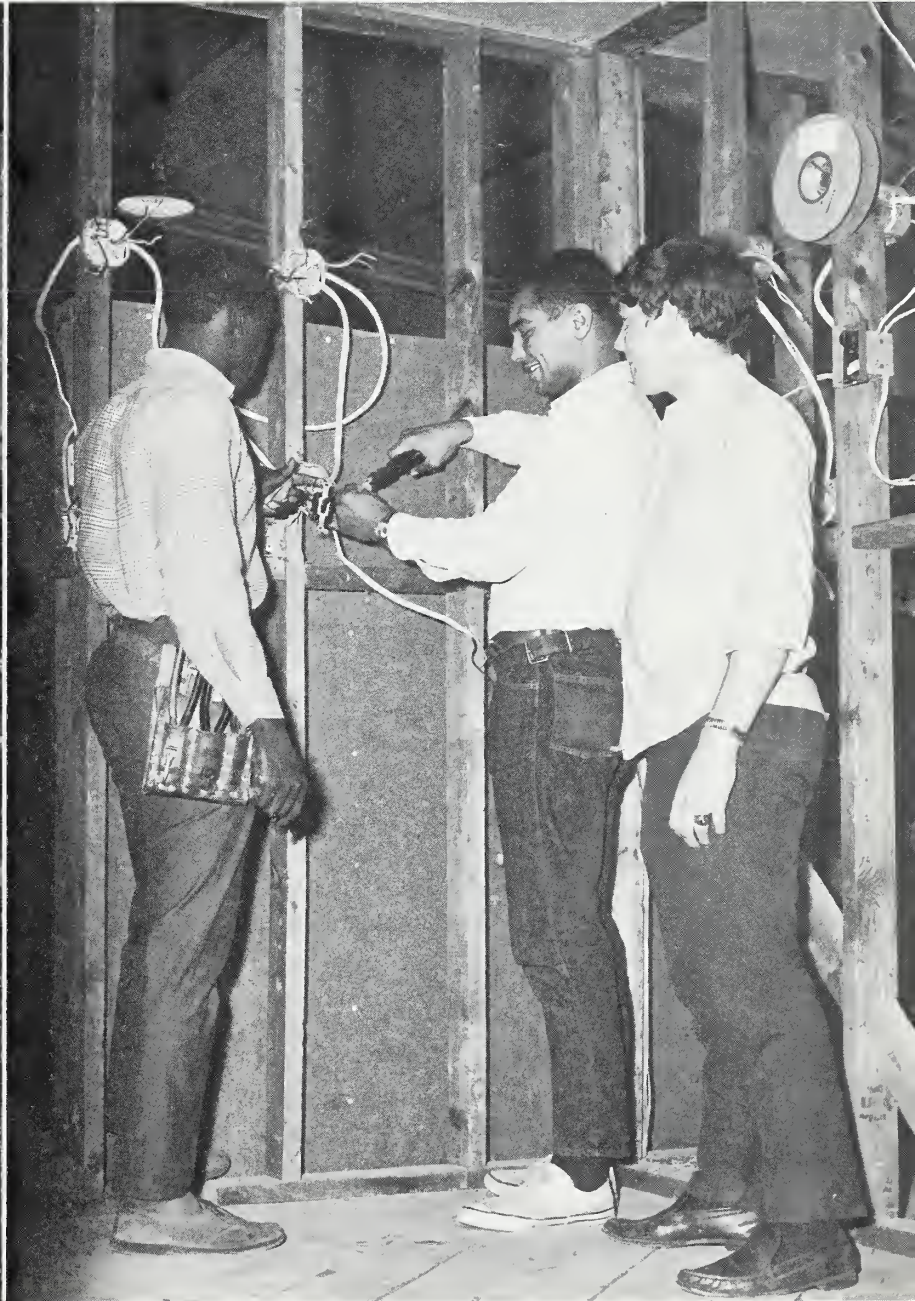

Success or failure often depends upon the individual's skill and training in a world of increasingly rapid advancements in technology and new methods. Through instruction and practice, competence in electric work, basic building construction, plumbing, carpentry, stenography, or auto service station mechanics is achieved. The student's understanding and knowledge is widened through basic refresher courses in math and reading skills. Thus the opportunity for a brighter future comes to the trained person.

Members of the plumbing class must learn the floor plan of a house in order to properly perform their job.

Middle: "Do all of you girls know your brief forms?"

Right: You boys could get a big shock if you touched the wrong wire.

The carpentry class works heartily on our new extension to the library.

NIGHT CLASSES

adult basic education and others

The dark halls of STI stand empty, but at the end there awaits a future of education.

Adult Education classes, held both during the day and at night, afford many the opportunity of a continuing education in a variety of fields. Adult Basic Education classes are held at the Institute and at various locations throughout the county for adults who have less than an eighth-grade education. An Adult High School Diploma Program is offered which enables the students to work toward a high school diploma. Courses are also available in the trades and industry field as well as classes for personal enjoyment and enrichment.

Students of the Night Extension Program learn to type with ease and accuracy.

Imaginative ideas are used in the Cake Decorating program.

"Is flying one of your pastimes, Mr. Wrench?"

Many people, young and old, acquire their high-school diploma through the Adult Basic Education program at STI.

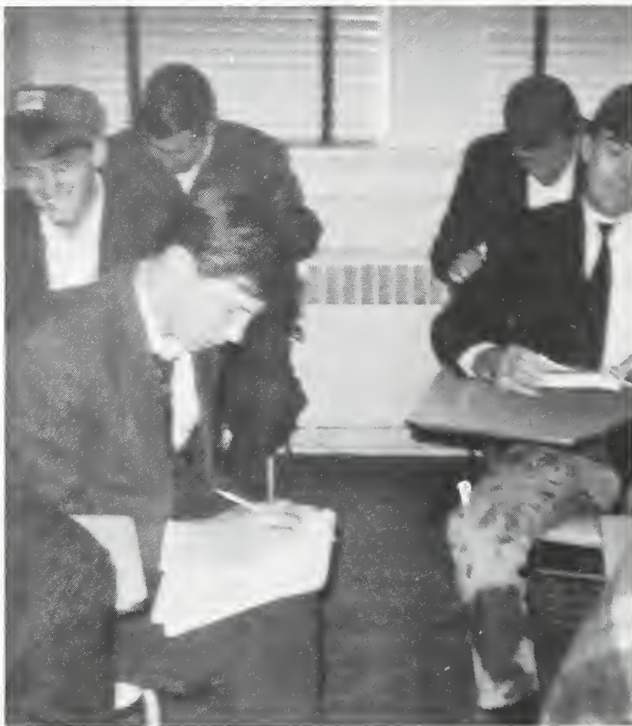

At least one student seems to be amused with the course.

CLASSES

We look toward the future with a heart of hope and an air of accomplishment

"I'll not trade my Texaco hat for any Cloroxed pants!"

"Man, I've got to hurry to finish before Mrs. Hill gets here."

"Dwight, Studying???"

"It's just not fair, Mr. Murphy, it's just not fair."

Accounting requires hard work and a great deal of patience.
